Data Protection

To meet the University’s obligations under the data protection legislation, the Faculty deals with data relating to individuals and their examination marks as follows:

All marks for individual questions and Computational Projects are sent routinely to individual candidates and their Colleges after the examinations. The final examination mark book is kept indefinitely by the Undergraduate Office.

Scripts and Computational Projects submissions are kept, in line with the University policy, for six months following the examinations (in case of appeals). Scripts are then destroyed; and Computational Projects are anonymised and stored in a form that allows comparison (using anti-plagiarism software) with current projects.

Neither the Data Protection Act nor the Freedom of Information Act entitle candidates to have access to their scripts. However, data appearing on individual examination scripts are available on application to the University Information Compliance Office and on payment of a fee. Such data consists of little more than ticks, crosses, underlines, and mark subtotals and totals.
